Dear Sir;

The enclosed literature describes a new aircraft now undergoing tests. The Cyclo-Crane is intended to provide aerial access to currently inaccessible resources such as timber and minerals. We also see a major use in constructing industrial facilities in underdeveloped areas.

Assuming we are successful, both technically and economically, the Cyclo-Crane will have a substantial impact and major presence in many areas of the world. I suggest that the use of these vehicles should be directed to areas and operations that will serve the interests of our country.

I feel a simple obligation to offer my personal services and whatever other corporate support that might be of interest to your agency.

In the event that some form of cooperation results from this contact, it occurred to me that you might wish to maintain a confidential relationship. This letter was personally typed with this possibility in mind.

If you have any interest, I would be glad to visit your offices with video tapes of our vehicle in flight or you may wish to have your staff visit us here in Tillamook.

Very truly yours,

Arthur G. Crimmins
